The Bank of Canada, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, and the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco are hosting a conference on Fixed Income Research and Implications for Monetary Policy, to be held in Chicago on April 29-30, 2027.

The conference will provide an opportunity for researchers to discuss theoretical and empirical issues in fixed income research and how they relate to the conduct of monetary policy.

Topics of particular interest include:

- Macroeconomic determinants of yields, including inflation, long-run growth and productivity,
- Fiscal policy, government debt supply, and debt management
- International fixed-income markets, exchange rates, and global demand for safe assets;
- Intermediation frictions and market structure, including in repo and funding markets;
- Monetary-policy implementation and transmission.

We will also consider papers on fixed income research broadly defined, such as term structure modeling, bond market volatility, estimation of risk premia, default risk, corporate bond markets, and securitization.

Those interested in presenting research at this conference should send a draft of their paper or a detailed abstract in electronic form to chi.fixed.income.markets.conference@chi.frb.org by December 15, 2026. The authors of accepted papers will be notified by mid-January. The organizers will cover reasonable travel expenses for presenters. Electronic copies of the conference papers will be made available online.
